Option 1: Community-run library

The library would stay where it is now, but be staffed by volunteers. The existing facilities would remain, and it would also include self-service facilities. Self-service allows customers to issue, renew and return items themselves so minimising routine duties of volunteers. The community would have a greater say in how the service is delivered, e.g. opening hours and stock preferences.

Option 2: Mobile library service

A mobile library could visit different parts of the village. This could be either weekly or fortnightly. Depending on the suitability of sites, the mobile library could stay at one or two places for several hours, or stop in a larger number of places for a shorter time.
